

ALEXANDRIA, VA.

MONDAY, MARCH 3, 1873.

The New York Herald says:—"With the covering up and hiding away of the Credit Mobilier scandal by the House we had supposed that nothing in the line of official high crimes and misdemeanors could be produced deemed worthy of impeachment, but it appears that, on motion of Mr. Butler, of the Judiciary Committee, Mark H. Delahay, a U. S. Judge for the District of Kansas, is to be arraigned before the Senate on articles of impeachment from the House, based upon charges of habitual intoxication and his connection with the mysterious disappearance of some thirty-two thousand dollars of the public money, for which he is held responsible to the government. Gen. Butler, however, could not forego the opportunity for the encouraging observation that the House having purified itself, ought to purify the judiciary a bit. It would appear, nevertheless, that the Judiciary Committee is not satisfied that the Credit Mobilier purification of the House is all the purification required in this business; for, on motion of Mr. Wilson, of said committee, an amendment was admitted to the Legislative Appropriation bill, providing for a general judicial overhauling and rectification of the affairs of the Union Pacific Railroad Company—an amendment which Mr. Dickey, of Pennsylvania, warned the mover, if admitted, "Your appropriation bill is gone where the woodbine twineeth."

Mr. Bingham took an active part in the House of Representatives in favor of those accused of complicity in the Credit Mobilier affair. The Richmond Whig says that "Mr. Ritchie, of Maryland, offered a resolution censuring all those who had participated in Credit Mobilier stock. As this was coming rather close home, Mr. Bingham indignantly objected, and made a point of order against it. Mr. Ritchie replied that

"No rogue e'er felt the halter draw
With good opinion of the law."

Mr. Bingham was disgusted with such poetry, and so soon as he could recover from a choking sensation, declared its author to be a "d-d fool."

Ten shares of stock so valuable as that of the Credit Mobilier do not often go begging for an owner, but such is the condition of the shares which Mr. Ames says he sold Judge Kelley and the latter refuses to own. They were handed over to Mr. Poland, but they are clearly not his, and he is in a quandary as to what to do with them. Pomeroy's $7,000 are another subject of anxiety; York has given them up, Pomeroy cannot take them back, and there is no authority for any disposal of the amount. Mr. Horton, one of Mr. Pomeroy's counsel, had made arrangements to sue York for embezzlement, and the papers were prepared on Friday, but York disappeared from Washington on Saturday.

The Spanish Government propose to immediately organize fifty new battalions, of nine hundred men each, with the view of crushing out the Carlist insurrection. In Catalonia, Alicante and Murcia the Carlists are reported to be increasing both in numbers and daring. The Prince Alphonse and his Princess, with a large staff and body guard, have spent an entire day at San Quire, to which place the country people flocked to pay their respects. The regular army in this section is reported to be sadly disorganized, and the garrison at Barcelona is said to have manifested symptoms of insubordination.

A telegram was received at Washington yesterday, from a "high official" at New Orleans, saying that there was no apprehension there of a collision between the contending factions. "The people are said to be weary of partisan strife, and only anxious to have all questions quietly, speedily and peaceably settled. The Legislature on Saturday elected General W. L. McMillen to the United States Senate for six years from the 4th of March. The Kellogg Legislature will also elect a Senator, and the Senate will be called on to decide between them.

At the meeting of the French Assembly, on Saturday, the Minister of Justice, in an address defined what the Government proposed to maintain. His statement was received with favor by the Conservatives, and the Assembly by a large majority resolved to discuss in detail the proposals of the Committee of Thirty. The project submitted by them was regarded by some to be thoroughly republican, though provisional, while it was claimed by others that the Assembly could exercise constitutional power whenever it thought proper.

The Metropolitan Methodist Church in Washington was densely crowded yesterday morning, President Grant, Vice-President-elect Wilson and nearly all the Cabinet officers, together with the Summer Guards, of Syracuse, New York, in uniform, being among the auditors. Rev. Dr. Tiffany delivered a discourse on the relation of religion to the State, on the conclusion of which he made a complimentary allusion to President Grant, remarking in that connection that "peace hath her victories no less renowned than war." (?)

During the Sunday evening session of the Senate the House joint resolution congratulating Spain on the establishment of a republic was passed; also the bill to pay the awards of the Southern Claims Commission.

Although another move of the female suffragists was killed in the Senate on Saturday, they were not discouraged. On the same day a delegation, consisting of Representatives Hoar, Sargent, Willard and several prominent female suffragists called upon the President and urged him to take an advanced position in his forthcoming inaugural address in favor of giving to women the elective franchise. The President promised to take the matter into consideration, and that was all the satisfaction he gave to his petitioners.

Alexander Kirkland, one of the oldest and most respected of Baltimore merchants, died on Saturday. For more than sixty years he was identified with the commercial interests of that city. Born in Ireland in 1784, he emigrated to this country when about twenty-five years of age, and located in Baltimore, and forthwith began his mercantile career. He was senior partner in the great coffee and sugar house of Kirkland, Chase & Co., founded in 1825.

The Nashville Advocate publishes an extract of a letter from Rev. Thomas H. Early, giving information of the condition of his father's health. He says the venerable Bishop has passed the winter thus far in a comfortable manner, and adds: "He is very feeble—has fallen several times in attempting to cross the floor alone; but he is freer from pain than he used to be. His mental faculties retain much of their former strength, though his memory is failing."

The Washington Chronicle says that it has heard of shameful exactions, and of purposes to "bleed" the visitors to Washington during the present influx of strangers in that city. Let visitors then come down to Alexandria, where there will be no exactions and no "bleeding." They can go to and come from the metropolis every hour in the day, and almost every hour in the night.

A cable dispatch says that the Great Eastern has now on board two thousand five hundred and sixty-seven miles of cable. The telegraph fleet is to consist of the Great Eastern, Hibernia, Edinburgh and La Plata. The fleet will sail the last week in May. It is expected that the new cable will be in working order before the first day of July.

The people in the southern portion of Butte county, Va., have been during the last two weeks considerably excited by reports of the discovery, by certain parties, of a silver mine in Tinker mountain, said to be the richest in America. We hope it may turn out that the reports are true—but silver mines "are very uncertain."

On Saturday Secretary Boutwell issued a circular calling in fifty millions of five-twenty bonds of the issue of 1862, most of which are held in Europe. The Secretary has also issued an order calling in three hundred and ninety thousand dollars of three per cent. bonds, interest to cease April 30, 1873.

Congress sat all Saturday and all Sunday night, the Senate keeping up until 4.45 o'clock Sunday morning, adjourning then only to resume the business of pressing necessity Sunday night. The House remained in session until 1.15 o'clock Sunday morning, when a recess was taken until 9 a. m. to-day.

The business of market gardening in the neighborhood of Norfolk, will be carried on this year more extensively than ever, and preparations are making to send to the Northern markets, large quantities of early vegetables. These always bring good prices.

The words "Ece Homo" have been placed over the President's platform in the Inauguration hall building. We notice that a writer in the Washington Chronicle suggests, for obvious reasons, that the inscription be at once removed. It ought to be.

The defeat of the motion to reconsider the rejection of the Louisiana bill in all probability settles the question as to congressional action, and in the absence of such action the President has the whole decision, so far as the government is concerned, in his own hands.

Andrew T. Rogers, of Washington, has prepared an interesting description of the Great Falls of the Potomac river and the adjacent country, with its resources and outlets, and its capabilities as a great manufacturing centre of the United States.

The political disabilities of Mr. De Jarnette, of Virginia, J. L. M. Curry, formerly of Alabama, Judge James G. Hallyburton, of Virginia, and Thomas G. Wilson of Texas, have been finally removed.

By the public debt statement just published, it appears that there was a decrease last month of $5,277,880.77, and for the year of $368,082,559.48. So it appears!

The proposition to open all branches of the army to the enlistment of colored people met little favor in the U. S. Senate.

Pick pockets, in large numbers, are said to have arrived in Washington. Look out!

The forty-second Congress closes its career tonight.

A CHAIR IN WHICH WASHINGTON SAT.—The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate has received from New York the chair in which Washington sat just before his first inauguration as President of the United States, and in which General Grant will sit on to-morrow previous to taking the oath of office. It belongs to the mother of the late William H. C. Wadwell, who was marshal of the southern district of New York under Jackson's administration. He secured the chair and gave it to his mother, who resides in Westchester county New York, and who tendered it to be used on the approaching inauguration. The chair has arms, is of mahogany, and substantially constructed, with an open frame back, and a representation of two crosses in the scrollwork. The history of the chair is authenticated.

SEVERE INJURY.—A colored man, named Elijah Williams, came near dying in Washington on Saturday under peculiar circumstances. He entered the store of Mrs. Eliza Harvey and was making off with the money drawer and its contents when he was noticed by a saleslady in the store, but who happened to be outside, who closed the glass door. Williams kicked the glass out of the door, and in doing so severed an artery in his leg and lost considerable blood, the flow of which was with difficulty stayed by Dr. Barnes.

The President has pardoned Miles Carroll, Miles McCulloch, Henry Warlick and James A. Saunders, of South Carolina, "Ku Klux."

CONGRESS.—The Senate sat all day Saturday and through the night until dawn on Sunday morning, and reassembled last night. The House adjourned yesterday morning until to-day. In the Senate the credentials of Messrs. McCree, of Kentucky, Mitchell, of Oregon, and Merrimon, of North Carolina, were presented. A resolution was offered by Mr. Bayard, inquiring whether any officer of the army, while stationed in South Carolina, has received or attempted to procure payment from the State Legislature for services performed in the line of his duty or otherwise. The consideration of the sundry civil bill was concluded, and the bill passed with amendments during the evening session. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the Louisiana bill was rejected was laid on the table. The legislative appropriation bill was taken up, and the House amendment increasing the salaries of the President and members of Congress was rejected. Other House amendments were disagreed to, and a conference committee appointed on the bill. A bill was passed fixing the date of the election for members of Congress in California on the first Wednesday of September, 1874. The committee on the revision of laws reported adversely upon the petition of Susan B. Anthony and others, asking a female suffrage amendment to the Constitution. The river and harbor bill was passed with amendments. The Senate concurred in the House amendments to the bill for the suppression of the trade in obscene literature. The bill relating to the Texas Pacific railroad was amended and passed. Mr. Morrill asked for immediate consideration of the report of the Senate Credit Mobilier Committee; but, after some discussion, the Senate, at 4.45 a. m., Sunday, took a recess until 7 p. m. On re-assembling the House resolution congratulating the people of Spain on the formation of a republic was adopted. The bill for the payment of the awards made by the Southern Claims Commission was then taken up and passed after debate. The Senate added to the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill nearly a million of dollars for the improvement of Government property in Washington, another million to reimburse the city for its expenditure on the streets, and half a million for the erection of a building for the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. The House rejected some of these amendments, and a Committee of Conference was appointed. Similar committees were ordered on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Army and Postoffice appropriation bill. Mr. Morrill reported that the Senate and House committees have been unable to agree upon the acceptance of any of the models offered for the Farragut statue.

In the House of Representatives, bills were passed for the relief of political disabilities of citizens of Virginia and Texas. The legislative appropriation bill was taken up, and the vote rejecting the amendment for the increase of the salaries of the President and members of Congress was reconsidered—yeas 105, nays 78. An amendment was then inserted in favor of the proposed increase. It fixes the salaries of members at $6,500, and cuts off all allowance for mileage, &c. The bill was then passed. At the evening session a bill was adopted appropriating $61,174.50 for the relief of Treasurer Spinner. The consideration of the deficiency appropriation bill was concluded in committee of the whole, and the House concurred in the amendments agreed upon. A conference committee was appointed upon the sundry civil appropriation bill. The Senate bill prohibiting the circulation of obscene books was passed. The House then, at 1.15 a. m., took a recess until 9 a. m. to-day. The bill establishing life-saving stations on the Atlantic coast was passed by both Houses.

"FIRST BLOOD OF THE WAR."—Some of our contemporaries claim that "the first blood of the war" was shed at Fetterman, W. Va., on the 21st of May, 1861, when a violent Union man was killed by a Virginia sentinel for attempting to force his post. Others claim that it was shed at the Marshall House in Alexandria, two days later, when Col. Ellworth and Jas. W. Jackson lost their lives. These were, however, but encounters between citizens and soldiers and it cannot be said of the slain that they lost their lives in actual war. The first engagement of the war occurred at Fairfax C. H., Va., on the first of June, 1861, between a raiding party of dragoons under Lieut. Tompkins of the U. S. A., and a company of Virginia infantry from Warrenton under command of Capt. John Q. Marr. In that fight Capt. Marr lost his life, and of him it may be truly said that his was "the first blood of the war." He was a valued citizen, and no man from the beginning to the close of the unequal struggle made greater sacrifices than he in abandoning home and preparing to the tented field.—Warrenton Index.

VIRGINIA NEWS.

The Governor left Richmond for Washington Friday morning to look after Virginia's quota of arms due from the Federal Government for four years past. The bill allowing the quota has passed the House of Representatives, but hangs fire in the Senate. It is probable that the Governor will also use his influence in behalf of the State Board of Education in favor of the passage of the bill making further appropriations of public lands for educational purposes, now before the Senate.

A letter from Manassas in the Frederickburg Star says:—"The steam grist mill in this place has not been able to grind for over three weeks on account of a failure to obtain wood, attributable to the wretched condition in which the roads have been during that time, which has resulted much to the inconvenience of our citizens, as they have not been able to supply themselves with meal, the proprietors of mills outside of town fearing to bring that staple article to our market."

The motion for a new trial in the case of W. J. Anable, of Henrico, convicted of felony, having been overruled, the prisoner was sentenced on Saturday to confinement in the penitentiary for the term of three years. The prisoner in the mean time was remanded to jail.

THE OYSTER AND FISH TRADE IN NORFOLK is enormous, and seems capable of almost indefinite expansion. The waters with which the city is connected are in the greatest variety of fish of the finest flavor known to epicures, and extensive fisheries are in operation from April to November. The owner of one of these fisheries contracts to furnish a dealer forty bushels every day during the season, and does not expect that contract to exhaust by any means his supply. Perch, chub, and other varieties of very fine fish are now abundant in the Norfolk markets.

The sale of fresh fish in Norfolk for the season of 1872 amounted to about $200,000.

The chief inspector of oysters reported that during the year 1869 there were engaged in taking oysters in Virginia waters 5,000 small boats and 1,000 vessels of over five tons, the total amount taken being 10,530,000 bushels. About one-fourth of these oysters are disposed of in Norfolk. One of the dealers here sold in the season of 1871-72, 137,000 bushels, and expects to increase his trade very largely this season. They are packing oysters there for Liverpool and other foreign ports, the trade seems but just beginning.—Rich. Dis.

The "rush to Washington" has commenced. If the weather to-morrow should be favorable, "Inauguration day" will be a grand affair. It is expected, however, that the illuminations and fire works at night will be the "feature" of the occasion.

The Senate joint resolutions approving the assumption of the debts of the States by the Federal government came up as a special order, when Mr. Dunclaw offered the following substitute:

"Whereas, Virginia, by grant to the government of the United States did convey an immense territory for the general good and peace of the whole confederation in 1783; and whereas, the United States in the exercise of its war-making power conquered, dismembered and annihilated the commonwealth of Virginia, for the preservation of the Union, and his from the territory thus conquered created two new sovereignties, or States, without the consent or the approval of the old commonwealth of Virginia, by which a large proportion of the taxable values (upon which the commonwealth of Virginia had contracted large liabilities) have been utterly destroyed and her citizens greatly reduced in their means, and rendered wholly unable to liquidate the pledged faith of the old commonwealth, whose ancient glory and renown are alike dear to her own sons and to the lovers of liberty throughout our whole country; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the government of the United States be and is hereby requested to grant to West Virginia and Virginia so much of the public lands as may be necessary to liquidate what may have been equitably due by the commonwealth of Virginia at the time of her dissolution."

(COMMUNICATED)

Rev. Peter Kroes.

(Late Pastor of St. Mary's Church, Alex., Va.) "He has only gone home," we were told today. From all pain and from trial, away, away. To relinquish his cross at the Savior's feet. The old father's "gone home" where God's children meet.

No stranger is he in that mansion above. For his life up on earth was a mission of love. Of love both in feeling, in act and in word. For who sought his presence and passed on as heard?

"He has only gone home!" stepped through the portal. Where earth's weakness changes to power in moral; Where tremulous tones unfurling praise. In full notes of music their psalm of praise. The grateful hosts in victory over his form. And death brought no sting for through his shine and storm.

He zealously labored to let his light shine. To glorify God and His kingdom divine. He'll ne'er come again where he once longed to roam. But should deplore it, "he's only gone home."
